SENIOR PRODUCT DESIGNER — BERLIN, GERMANY

Dear Vimcar Hiring Team,

I'm applying for the Senior Product Designer role in Berlin. Vimcar's mission — making fleet management simple, connected and genuinely useful for small and mid-sized businesses — resonates strongly with the kind of mobility and operational UX I've spent the past several years on. The chance to design for fleet managers and drivers across a product that touches real-world vehicles every day is the kind of problem space I'd love to go deep on.

For the last two years at SnappTrip, I've been Senior Product Designer on a multi-vertical travel and mobility platform (flights, buses, trains, hotels). I design across both consumer booking and the operational dashboards behind them, and the impact is measurable: a filter and search redesign that drove a 3X filter conversion rate improvement, A/B tests on result cards that delivered a 10% uplift in conversion, and a cancellation flow overhaul that cut support calls per ticket by 30% by making operational self-service work. Earlier, at MintList, I designed for an online car-trading marketplace, which is where I first fell in love with vehicle- and mobility-centric UX. Across all of it, I work day-to-day with Product, Engineering and Data to turn behavior into shipped improvements, and I've been integrating AI tooling into research and prototyping to move faster.

Berlin has been at the top of my relocation shortlist, and Vimcar specifically for the mobility focus. I'm Tehran-based, ready to relocate, and would qualify for the EU Blue Card; happy to begin that conversation whenever useful. Open to on-site in Berlin from day one.

I'd love to walk you through my SnappTrip and MintList mobility work. Thank you for your time.

Warm regards,

Farzaneh Abasnezhadford
